WORKSHOP

Towards a City Museum Watch

Museum of Lisbon, Lisbon, Portugal, May 3-4, 2019

<http://network.icom.museum/camoc/>

Workshop partners: CAMOC and ICOM Portugal, in collaboration with ICOM- MDPP

With the increase of global urban population, old museums about the city's history have been changing and new city museums emerging around the world. Both the transformed museums of city history and the new ones are becoming more oriented towards narratives related with their communities, and becoming agents of change, addressing issues like migrations, political activism, social urban rights or sustainability. Though CAMOC is the ICOM's international committee for city museums, their collections and activities, it is not possible to tell how many city museums there are and how they are evolving, which is an essential data to the future positioning of CAMOC and ICOM itself in the urban world.

To address this, we propose the two-day workshop dedicated to the major trends to watch for city museums and the identification of what types of museums are to be considered city museums. We will meet in Lisbon on May 3-4, 2019, and welcome internationally recognised experts on city museums. The workshop will be held in collaboration with the ICOM Portugal National Committee and the ICOM MDPP working group.

The CAMOC's principal goals behind this workshop are:

- a) to find a common-ground conceptual framework that may allow us to further identify city museums in the world in their diversity, embracing different styles and scales of museums and the concept of museum for the city, not just about the city;
- b) to better recognize and follow the current international trends in city museums in the different regions;
- c) to help design the methodology for the planned global city museums mapping project.

The main programme elements:

- keynote speech and invited speakers' presentations by renowned city museum experts
- one of our sessions will be dedicated to exploring the changing practice of several prominent museums from across the host country, Portugal. These museums of different styles and scales have been internationally recognized and awarded for their recent initiatives and efforts in redefining city museums' practice
- a series of interactive workshop sessions on city museum trends will be held
- FINAL ROUND TABLE AND DEBATE, aiming at pinpointing main city museum trends and definitions.

The work on the definitions and trends in city museums is a continuation of our previous actions, which include workshops in Berlin and in Moscow in 2015, and an entire session dedicated to possible definitions of city museums at our latest annual conference, in Frankfurt in June 2018. We have been following the state-of-the-art work of The City History Museums and Research Network of Europe and the efforts of the MDPP to achieve a new museum definition.

After the Lisbon workshop, CAMOC's work on trends in city museums will continue at our annual conference in Kyoto in September 2019.

In the near future, CAMOC plans to engage in a global survey and mapping project to identify, understand and chart city museums in the world, to be able to answer questions like, "how many city museums we have in the world?", "how young city museums are?" or "what are the new forms of city museums?". We plan to apply the Lisbon workshop outcomes and the results of other related activities directly in this project.
